This is a picture of Ann's brother Sam. He is just as nice as Ann. Everybody likes S—m and Ann.

Sam

Here you see a picture of Walter, the little boy that lives next door to Sam and Ann. Walter is not as old as Sam or Ann – he is only six – but he is just as much fun.

All the children hope that you will like this book. It is full of surprises just for you.

The Little Red House

Here you see a picture of a little red house. The house is made of red bricks and red sticks.

There is a tall tree growing next to the house. Under the tree, it is nice and shady. It is also sunny.

There is a white bench fence all around the house.

A striped cat is sitting in front of the fence.

Check the things that are inside the fence.

- the tree
- the cat
- the house

The cat is outside the fence.

The house is inside outside the fence.

The tree is inside outside the house.

Is the sun out today?

It shines all inside around the house.

There is something in this picture that wasn't there before. It is called a cloud. Look for the cloud in the sky. It is fluffy and

- white.
- blue.
- yellow.

The sun and the cl__d are in the sky. But the house is not in the sky.

The h__se is on the ground.

The fence is also on the ground.

You found a cloud in the sky.

You found a cat running around the fence.

But you didn't find anybody in the house.

Nobody lives in the little red house, you see.

That is, nobody lives there yet.

Bang, crash, and pop!
Poppity, smack, bang!

What in the world are those sounds? They are getting louder and louder. The cat looks around the ence. She wants to find out

- 1. where the fence is.
- 2. what is making the sounds.
- 3. why the fence is white.
